Services to the Armed Forces (SAF)

Active duty, Reserve, National Guard, civilians supporting DOD and their family members can count on the Red Cross to provide emergency communications that link them with their families back home.

Today's American Red Cross is keeping pace with the changing military. Using the latest in computer and telecommunications technology, the Red Cross sends communications on behalf of family members who are facing emergencies or other important events to members of the U.S. Armed Forces serving all over the world. These communications are delivered around-the-clock, 7 days a week, 365 days a year. Red Cross workers in hundreds of chapters and on military installations brief departing service members and their families regarding available support services and explain how the Red Cross may assist them during the deployment.

Red Cross Service to the Armed Forces personnel work in 756 chapters in the United States, on 58 military installations around the world and have teams deployed with our troops in Afghanistan, Kuwait, and Iraq.

Emergency Communications:

Emergency messages are sent via American Red Cross when the service member's command requires verification of an emergency or the service member's family cannot directly contact the service member. Emergency Messages DO NOT replace normal communications.

Messages can be regarding the death, birth or serious illness of an immediate family member such as a parent/ spouse/ child and stepchild/ sibling/ grandparent/ last living blood relative/ legal guardian.

An Emergency Message DOES NOT guarantee emergency leave.

Leave is determined by the service member's chain of command.

How it works

An emergency happens in the family.

The family or service member contacts the American Red Cross.

The American Red Cross obtains basic information on service member and about the emergency.

Emergency is verified by medical facility and / or qualified personnel.

Message is sent to service members command via American Red Cross channels.
